

April 28, 2025

InterOptics Names Chris Ames Sales and Business Development Manager

Tucson, Arizona, April 28, 2025/--InterOptics, LLC, an optical metrology company specializing in high precision low coherence interferometers for measurement of flatness of disks, wafers, and precision optics, has appointed Chris Ames to lead its sales and marketing initiative as Sales and Business Development Manager, reporting to Dr. Chris Koliopoulos, Managing Director. He will also play a key role in steering growth as part of the leadership team. Mr. Ames previously worked in the semiconductor and optical capital equipment ecosystem.

"We believe Chris will help us in our path toward growth and further success," said Dr. Koliopoulos. "Mr. Ames brings a strong record of developing global teams that work together to drive results, focusing on increasing customer capabilities through enhanced metrology solutions."

"It is not often you get to be a part of a company that has created a technology that can improve performance, efficiency and accuracy in the optical metrology field. I believe InterOptics has tremendous opportunities to build on this foundation, to provide continuing value to our customers and help them improve their optical fabrication processes," said Chris Ames.